To Whom It May Concern

Re: Michael Linert

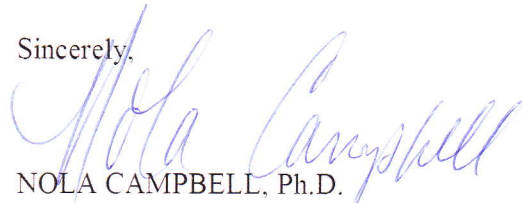

Greetings:

Michael Linert has been helping with the orchestra classes and students at Glastonbury High School for the week of April 26-30, 2010. He has been leading cello, violin, and viola sectionals, as well as conducting music for some of the classes. In the sectionals he has been teaching the students shifting and upper positions, as well as fingerings for scales and difficult sections in their music, and also how to tune their instruments. While conducting, he asked for phrasings and articulations that were very helpful in making the pieces more musical. The students have also indicated how much they learned during the sectionals, and enjoyed his teaching style.

I have very much appreciated his work here this week. His poise and expertise were quite effective when teaching and working with the students. I wish I could have him here all year.

If you have any questions or need further information, please feel free to contact me at the phone number or address listed.

Sincerely,

NOLA CAMPBELL, Ph.D.

Director of Orchestras
